Granite City officials will take part, in discussions with representatives of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce concerning acquisition of Lakeside Airport of City area, it was decided by the City Council Tuesday night. The council authorized Mayor Paul Schuler to appoint a special committee to meet on the proposal with the Chamber of Committee, headed by Dr. Donald Coleman.

The action followed a request by Dr. Coleman, by letter, that the city participate in the Chamber's discussion of a proposal to acquire Lakeside Airport and its development as a facility to serve this area.

Alderman Gerald Parmley of the Sixth Ward questioned whether or not the city could be interested in such a project since the airport is located

Poses as water employee, takes cash from home

A man who falsely represented himself as a water company employee took about 2505 from the home of John Janco Sr., 79, 0f 2004 E. 24th St., at 1 p.m. Month man claimed he was there to check the pipes and checked the basement for a few minutes. He then returned to the main floor and asked the victim to go upstairs and runs some water until he banged on the pipes.

Janco said he complied but did not hear any banging on the pipes, so he inquired, and the man told him to run the water while longer, and he left the house.

Scoville charges dismissed by U.S.

Federal charges of comparison of the former East Side Levee and Sanitary District Court at East St. Louis Monday. The dismissal was made at the comparison of the former East Side Levee and Sanitary District Court at East St. Louis Monday. The dismissal was made at the case had been weakened by Jampa R. Burgess Jr. who said the case had been weakened by the testimony of witnesses in other cases involving kick-backs, and by the death of a key witness, Romel Wilbon, also a mother levee and Sanitary District. Scoville and Charles Meyers, another levee board member, were indicted by a federal grand Jury in April 1975 with receiving kickbacks of more highly and the same former than 1976, of an apparent heart, at tack.

Jungess told U.S. District Judge James Foreman that the government's chief witness, to be sufficiently corrobroated by other witnesses and physical evidence to the extent that it would assure the case going to a Jury.

would assure the case going to a jury. The Scoville Irial was post-ponde last June because of an indictment against Schwarts in which he was charged with attempting to bribe a judge. Schwartz refused to testify in the Scoville case pending a ruling on his appeal that the indictment was based on testimony he had given the grand jury under a grant of immunity. Scoville's attorney, Bruce Cook, and the indictment against Scoville was dismissed

Monday because the government did not have the evidence to convict him.

"We've suspected for years that it would be dropped. It was an unfortunate indictment," Cook said.

Until a few years ago virtually all bill-drafting sessions are open—and when they're closed there's usually a pretty good reason, such as national security.

*Until recently, when bills reached the floor of the House or Senate, votes on significant amendments were often unrecorded, so that we couldn't really know how our elected representatives voted. Now almost all votes are recorded, and we can hold our representatives to account.

Congress has set up a Congressional Budget Office so that it can judge the total effect of its spending on the Federal Budget. The Congress has taken a lot of criticism. It deserves applause for these important advances toward integrity. Now if Members of Congress would enact public financing for their own Congressional campaigns to eliminate the power of money to buy political results, they would have earned a wholly new reputation.

You should wear clothes that You should wear clothes that entrap air, so your body heat can't escape. Trapping air within the garment — and between it and your body or other layers of clothing—gives clothing its insulation value. Consequently, thicker feeling fabrics are warmer than thinner ones. Pabric thickness — not the weight—makes the clothing warm.

It's better to wear several layers of lightweight clothing than to wear one or two heavy layers. These layers build up your body heat. They also allow you to be the layers to light and become warm.

Fabric construction is more important than filber content. For example, a lint sweater made of synthetic acrylic is warm because the knit content of the layer warm. The layer was to the layer warm. Sheriff intends to complete his present term in that office residence in Madison.

Sheriff John Maeras told the Press-Record Tuesday morning that he intends to finish out his second four-year term in that office, despite his move from the county seat at Edwardsville to his former residence in Madison.

This would appear to rule out the possibility of the Madison County Board voting on an acting sheriff to serve until the sheriff elected this year is sworn in next December.

The task facing voters in choosing a successor to Sheriff Maeras is a difficult one, and their perusal of those running in the Democratic primary election March 21 the property of the

the office.

This kind of a boost for a candidacy doesn't always work, anyway. Illinoisans recall that when the late Governor Otto Kerner resigned to accept a federal judgeship, Samuel Shapiro advanced to the executive mansion but lost in the general election to Richard Ogilvie.

As the shoriff points out, a key factor in his decision to move back to the home he owns in Madison is his disappointment over an Internal Revenue Service ruling that he must pay federal income taxes on the rent the county has paid for his living quarters in Edwardsville.

Sheriff Maeras had been willing to reside at the county jail, as had his predecessors. But three months before he took office in December 1970, the County Board voted to convert the sheriff offices.

His decision to serve out the full term will enable voters to select from among five contenders, none of whom is currently on active duty with the sheriff's department.

A $1,000,000,000,000 milestone looms ahead for U. S.

Press-Record Washington Bureau — As another income+ar deadline looms ahead, only a few weeks away now, Americans ought to give thought to a fantastic milestone our government is approaching — one that has received little public notice.

President Carter's budget calls for government spending of more than half a trillion dollars for fiscal 1979. As sure as a Washington deficit, the federal budget will top the trillion mark within a few years, probably sooner.

top the trillion mark within a few years, probably sooner.

A little story the other day reminds us of how mind-boggling a trillion dollars is; it is how mind-boggling a trillion dollars is; it is of 11.000,000,000,000,000.

That money in dollars bills would reach to the moon and back 250 times; it would make every man, woman, and child in Adlanta a millionaire.

For the non-math types among us, a trillion is 1,000 times a billion. So how much is a billion? One billion minutes ago Christ still walked the Earth: And one billion dollars ago was yesterday because the government is spending more than a billion dollars a day now.

Government spending didn't reach the billion-dollar mark until World War I, except for 1865, the last year of the Civil The second of the control of the control of the control of the second of the second of the control of the second of the second of the control of the second of the second of the control of the second of the secon billions during World War II and breaking the $100 billion mark in 1963.

The federal budget more than doubled during the last ten years.

Washington will break the trillion barrier by about 1985 and head toward a quadrillion, which carries 15 zeroes.

Just as astronomers years ago came to terms with the incomprehensible distances of the universe by calculating in terms of light years, based on the speed of light at 186,282 miles per second, it's obvious we're going to be compelled by these astronomical budgets to devise a shorthand reference for government shorthand reference for government spending.

To start the ball rolling toward filling this semantical need, we suggest the term, "government years."

In asmuch as Washington is spending a billion a day, give or take a few millions, one "government years" would equal $365 billion and three "government years" would mean roughly a trillion dollars.

Of course, as the ever-mushrooming budget changes, the "government year" would have to be adjusted.

But the way things are going, the

But the way things are going, the increases could actually simplify things because, by 1985, a "government year" will undoubtedly mean $1,000,000,000,000 on ice, round understandable figure.

Navy, strategic arms needs not being funded adequately

Press-Record Washington Bureau — In his speech to the San Diego, Calif., Chamber of Commerce, former President Cartal Ford sharply criticized President Carter's proposed defense budget.

Mr. Ford specifically questioned the outlook for shipbuilding, the FB-111 bomber, and the mobile intercontinental ballistic missile, the MX, in the budget.

About 600 ships will be necessary by the 1980's if the United States is to continue protecting important sea lanes and supporting its military forces.

But, as Mr. Ford emphasized, Mr.

supporting its military forces.

But, as Mr. Ford emphasized, Mr.
Carter's proposal to build an average of only 15 new ships during each of the next four years would "not be enough to maintain a 400-ship Navy, let alone the 600 ships" necessary, Mr. Ford, as president, proposed 33 new ships annually,
The FB-111 is the bomber that, among other things, Mr. Carter once suggested in, place of the B-1. But the funds Mr. Carter has proposed to allocate for it are minimal.
What's more, the funds are merely to study the feasibility of the FB-111, not produce it.

This, plus a fact which Mr. Ford did not mention, that the budget has no funds proposed for the sea-launched cruise missile, makes one wonder whether, missile, makes one wonder whether, having grounded the B-1, Mr. Carter now tends to substitute anything in its place. No doubt the Soviets are elated by the administration's decision not to produce the MX.

administration's decision not to produce the MX.

It was the MX program that Mr. Carter offered to halt if Moscow would reciprocate by halting its Soviet missile program and curbing the production of other missiles that would threaten U.S. land-based forces.

The Russians didn't respond to Mr. Carter's offer, so the presumption must be that Mr. Carter's offer, so the presumption must be that Mr. Carter, nervous about the stalled SALT negotiations, has virtually shelved the MX program anyway, in order to make "progress" in the talks. Progress, of course, its concession by another name.

The Soviets, meanwhile, move right along with their own mobile missile, the SS-20, which is no longer a blueprint but a reality in castern Russia, in range of China. More SS-20s are planned for central and western Russia. And in time, apparently, the SS-20 will be converted into an intercontinental missile, called the SS-16, which will bring the United States on target.

In light of these developments, Mr. Ford was disturbingly correct in his judgment hat Mr. Carter's proposed defense budget

This policy carries a very low premium rate but cannot be renewed after the veteran's 50th birthday. It can, however, be converted to one of eight permanent plans if the owner acts before the end of the last renewal period.

VA officials say they are encouraged by the response so far to a recent mailing to "W" term VSLI policy owners alerting them to the approaching necessity of converting their insurance if they wish to keep it in force.

Director Ramsey said detailed information and codf figures for each of the perminent plans can be obtained on request from the VA center where the veteran's insurance records are maintained, or by inquiry at the VA regional office at Chicago.
